

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Bob Tipton is a high-energy, innovative, and insightful transformational-change architect, leadership facilitator, keynote speaker, and author who is passionate about helping individuals, groups, and entire organizations reach for and achieve exceptional results. While it seems the need for transformational change exists everywhere, he specializes in five primary areas: 1) government (local, state, federal); 2) utilities (water, wastewater, power, transportation); 3) education (K–12, higher ed); 4) health care (provider-based); and 5) nonprofits/foundations.

Organizations in these areas tend to be institutionalized and bureaucratic. Some may say they are among the most difficult in which to make change “really” happen. However, he disagrees. Each of these areas also shares a common bond: the desire to serve people. It’s this “kernel” of serving the greater good that he works to reignite, to awaken from hibernation, to leverage in helping these organizations move toward greatness in what they do. Call him naive; call him delusional. It matters not. He loves to serve these kinds of organizations and help them remember the power and joy in what they do.

Bob is married to his high school sweetheart, and together they have four children and two grandchildren (thus far!). Living in the Denver area, he is a fourth-generation native of Colorado. He loves to travel and is a voracious, curious reader and a champion for causes involving children.
